Scripture: Jeremiah 29:4-14

Title: The End of 2020

What prolonged suffering doesn't imply: _____

What to do while we wait: _____

1) _____

2) _____

3) _____

Our assured future: _____

1. What has been most difficult about 2020 for you?
2. Did you feel abandoned by God at any point? Maybe just ignored? When?
3. During this year, what have you continued to do with little interruption: work for the good of others, stay connected to others, stay connected to God? Which has slipped the most in 2020?
4. What is one way you could begin to work for the good of others, stay more connected to other believers, or stay more connected to God?
5. Have you noticed a correlation between prioritizing your own comfort and experiencing depression/emptiness? When?
6. Have you noticed a correlation between prioritizing the needs of others and your own happiness? When?
7. What aspects of Jeremiah 29:11 are legitimate to apply to our lives as believers today? Illegitimate?
8. How should believing that "the best is yet to come for God's people" influence our lives in the here and now? How shouldn't it?
