Questions for Reflection and Discussion

Ruth 3

1. What do you make of Naomi and Ruth's plan to approach Boaz? Was it noble? Scandalous? Both? Something else? Why?
2. Why do we sometimes want to categorize someone's actions as entirely good or entirely bad rather than see complexity? What are the problems with doing this?
3. Do we judge ourselves the same way? Why or why not?
4. When have you noticed a mixture of noble and "less than noble" motives within yourself? For instance, when have you made a decision that simultaneously served your pride and another's good? Or you were simultaneously happy for a friend and jealous of that friend?
5. How should our complexity of being both noble and sinful inform how we treat others?
6. When have you seen God turn something broken into something beautiful?
7. How does God's promise of a perfect, eternal future, where all of our complications are uncomplicated, inform your understanding of any of your current struggles?
